Connect the supplied antenna, a home antenna, or cable-TV system.
Details are on pages 30-31.

4. Place the TV/VCR where you want to operate it.

Place the TV/VCR in a location where it is safe to operate.

5. Power the TV/VCR.

You can use the AC power cord to power the TV/VCR from standard household power or the included DC power cord to power your TV/VCR from a 12-volt car, truck, or RV battery.

Note: Both cords use the same connector on the back of the TV/VCR.
Remove one cord before using the other.

Caution

Take precautions that any stand or furniture the TV/VCR is placed on is properly located and of adequate size and strength to prevent the TV/VCR from accidentally being tipped over, pulled off, or pushed off. This could cause damage to the TV/VCR or personal injury.

Power the TV/VCR Using the AC Cord

1. Attach the square end of the AC power cord completely into the connector on the back of your TV/VCR. Be sure to insert the plug completely.
2. Plug the other end of the AC power cord into a wall outlet. Match the wide blade of the plug with the wide slot in the outlet.

Startup

Power the TV/VCR Using the DC Cord

1. Attach the square end of the DC power cord completely into the connector on the back of your TV/VCR. Be sure to insert the plug completely.
2. Turn on the vehicle's engine.
3. Plug the round end of the DC power cord into the cigarette lighter socket of a car, truck, boat, or RV having a 12-volt battery.

Important Notes

- There is a safety fuse in the plug of the DC power cord. Details for replacing the fuse are on page 33.
- The DC power cord is designed for use only in cars with negative (-) ground (negative terminal of car battery is connected to car chassis).
- The DC power cord should never be used in cars with a positive (+) ground.
- If you are unable to identify the negative (-) or positive (+) polarity of your car, consult your car owner's manual or check with a service station before use.

Cautions for DC Cord Operation from 12-Volt Battery

1. Use of an improper DC power cord or similar adapter may result in damage to your TV/VCR.
2. Avoid using the TV/VCR in a car unless the engine is turned on and running. Doing so will drain the car battery which may cause the car not to start properly.
3. Do not put the TV on the dashboard or leave it in a car parked in direct sunlight since the temperature inside the car may damage the TV/VCR.
4. If taking the TV/VCR from a cold car to a warm room, do not attempt to plug it in if there is any sign of condensation. This could damage the TV/VCR.
